THE PROJECT

WHAT IS THE GREEN PLAYGROUND?

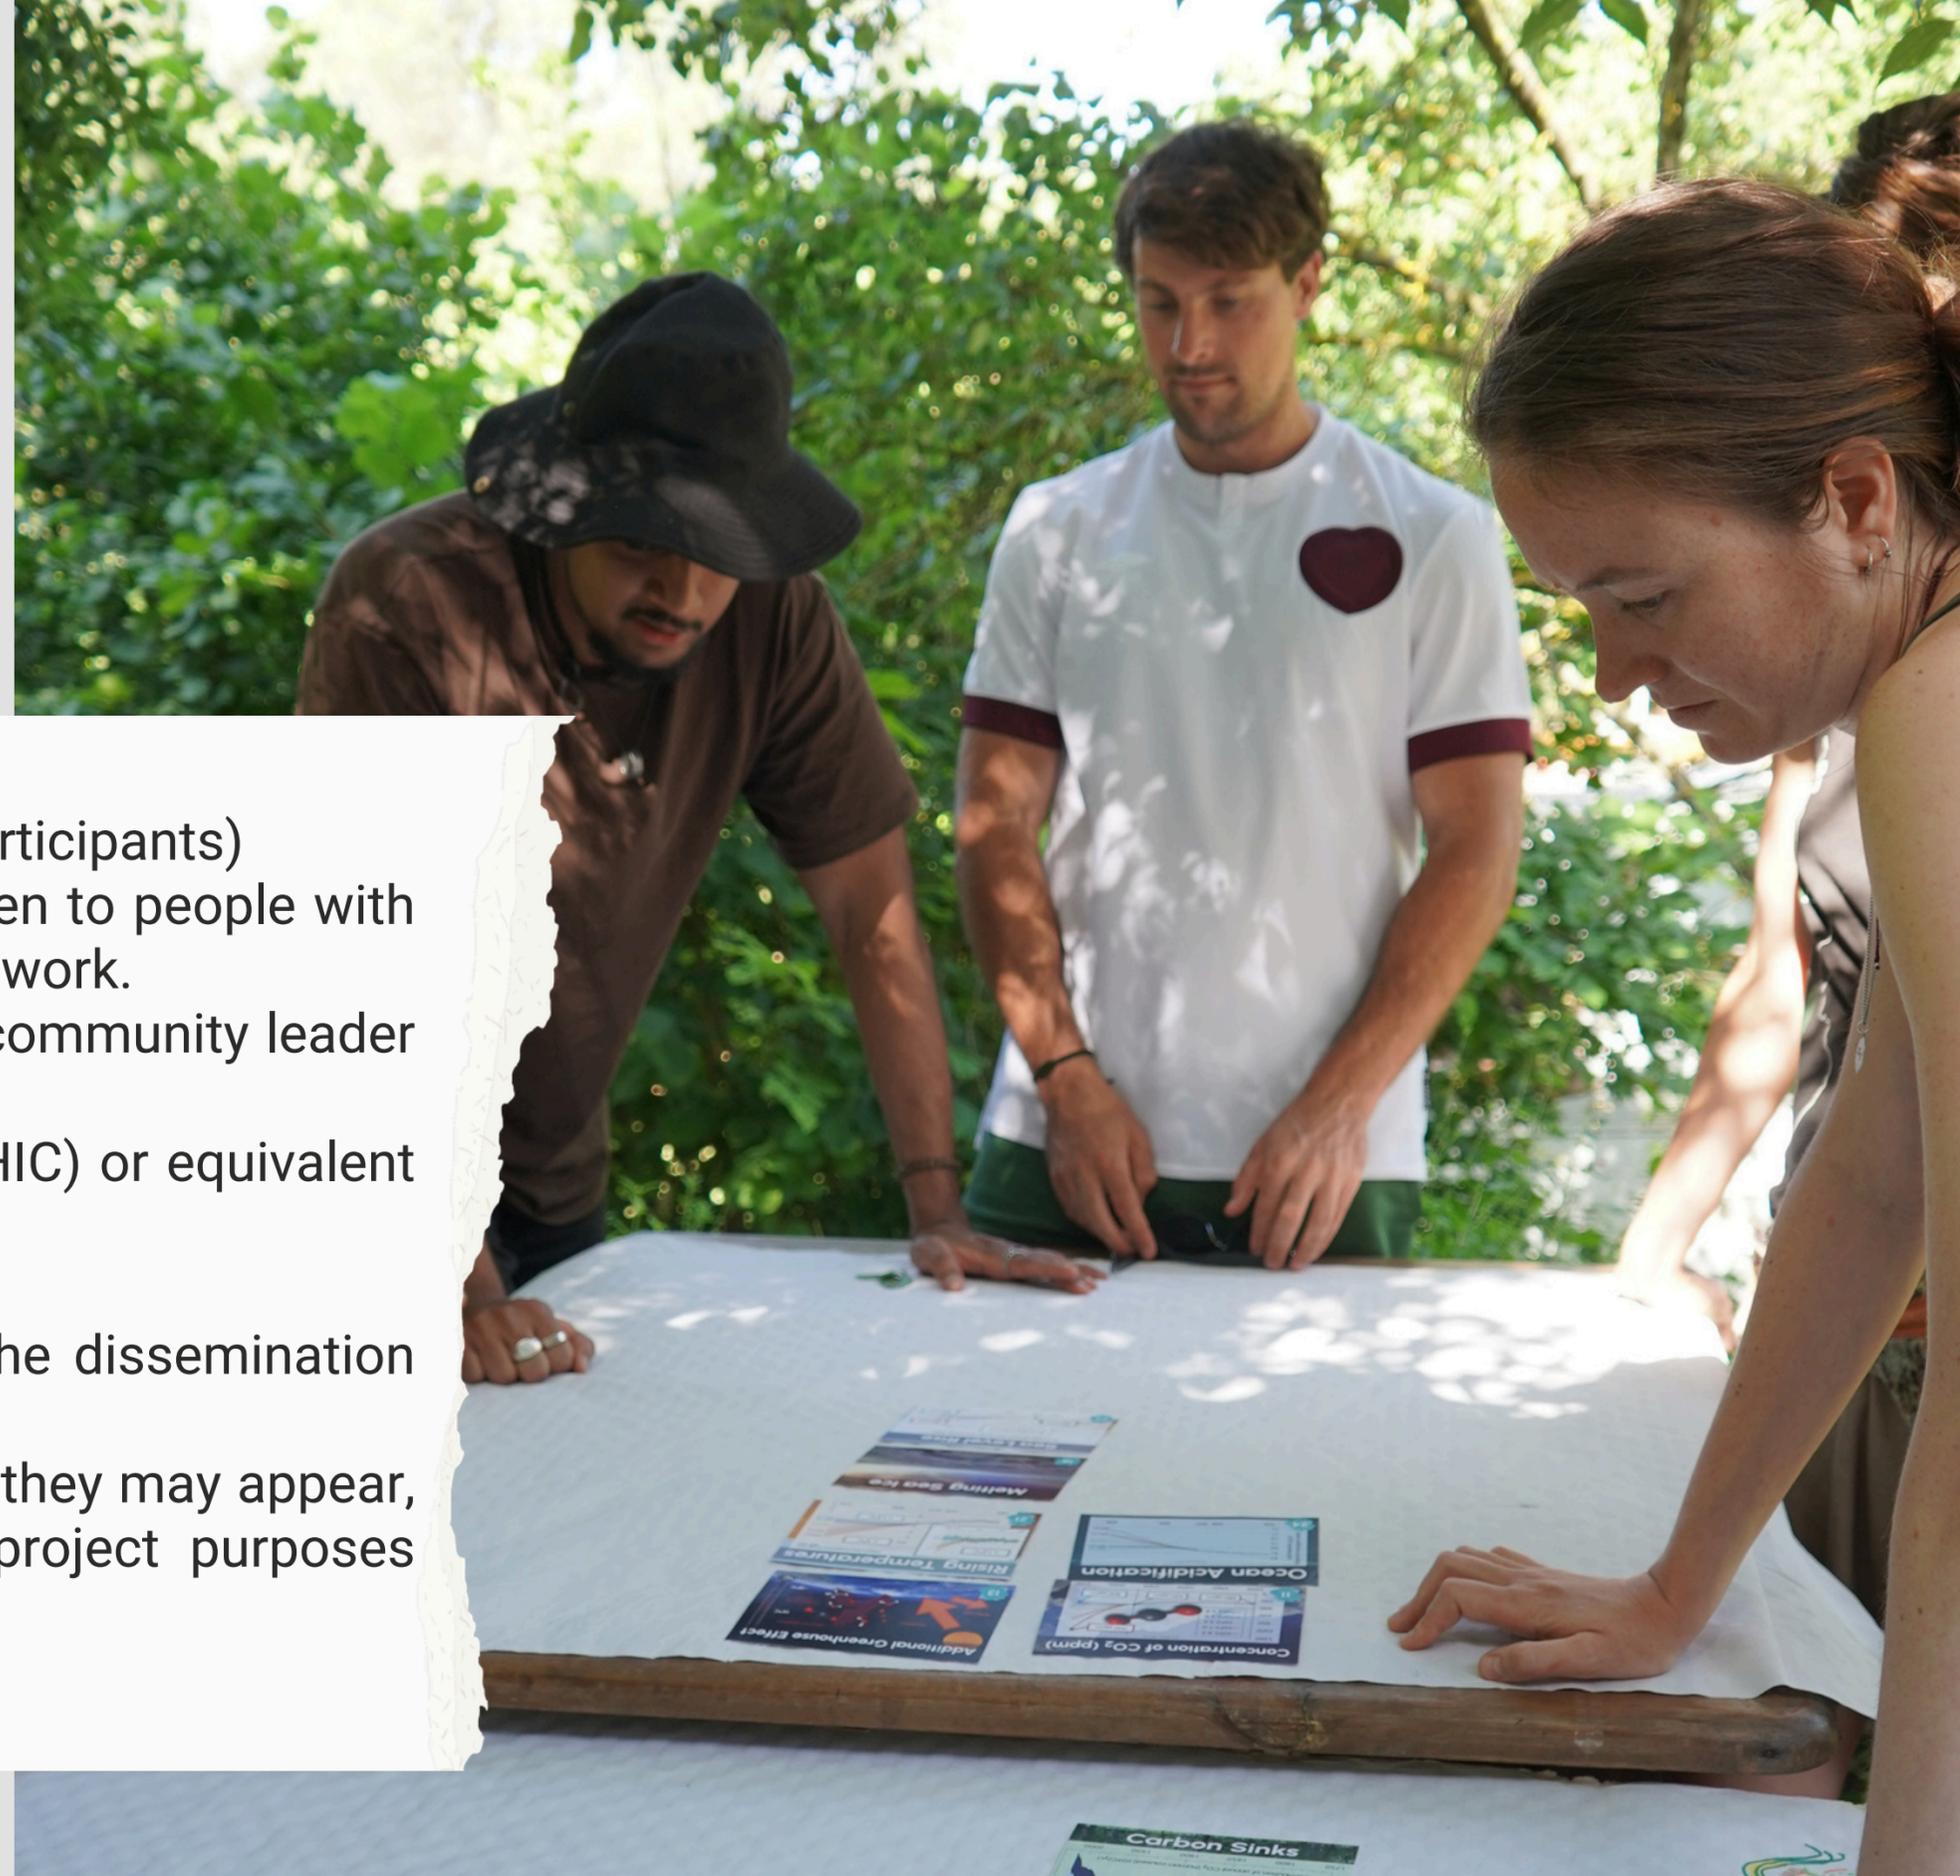

The Green Playground is a learning experience where creativity meets environmental education. It brings together 20 youth workers who become game's facilitators, exploring how gamification can transform environmental topics into something fun, interactive, and impactful.

Through collaboration and experimentation, participants will learn about gamification and co-create a digital toolkit filled with playful activities and games designed to inspire young people to care for the planet and take real action.

Born from the need to bridge the gap between environmental awareness and action, The Green Playground uses game-based and non-formal learning methods to turn complex topics into engaging experiences—empowering youth to learn, connect, and make a difference.

DISSEMINATION

As part of the project, participants will be expected to organize a local event in their home countries using gamification methodologies explored during the training course.

In collaboration with their sending organizations, participants will design the event inspired by the toolkit developed throughout the project, creating engaging and educational activities. These events will aim to promote environmental education and encourage active participation within their communities.

Additionally, each event should be properly documented in order to capture outcomes, share experiences, and contribute to the overall dissemination of the project results.

THE TEAM

SAUL NEBOT

Saul Nebot will be one of the trainers in the project, bringing over ten years of experience in non-formal education, youth work, and environmental education. His background combines technical knowledge in sustainability and agroecology with hands-on pedagogical practice. He has worked as an environmental educator for several public administrations, as well as a trainer and facilitator of non-formal education programmes, where he integrates his passion for environmental education through gamification.

Within the project, Saul will design and facilitate gamified learning processes and support participants in reflecting on and transferring these methods into their daily work. His extensive experience in Erasmus+ (including over 20 youth exchanges and 5 training courses) ensures a strong ability to guide international groups in a dynamic and cohesive way, while also sharing insights from his experience in the field.

GISELA SALÓ

Gisela Saló will join the project as a trainer, bringing more than a decade of experience in youth work, non-formal education, and creative facilitation. She is a youth worker, art educator, and theatre maker, specializing in the use of play, artistic expression, and creativity as educational tools. She has also delivered training sessions focused on game pedagogy.

Gisela has been actively involved in international initiatives such as CUJUCA (a project focused on street games and popular education) in Argentina.

Her work integrates methodologies such as body-based games, team building, improvisation, storytelling, and theatre to foster participation, inclusion, and collective creativity. Currently, she coordinates community-based artistic projects that connect people through shared stories and participatory approaches. In this project, she will bring an artistic and experiential dimension, enriching the learning process and supporting an inclusive and engaging group dynamic.

THE VENUE

La Masia La Morera (El Brull, Osona) is a space located within the Montseny Natural Park that works to be a driving and revitalizing force in the territory. Through sustainable rural tourism and a way of life consistent with its values, it promotes the conservation of the area's natural and cultural heritage, contributes to the economic and social development of local communities, and works to reverse challenges associated with rural life in the central regions of Catalonia.

The house offers shared accommodation, with rooms designed for 3–4 people, encouraging a communal and collaborative living experience. Guests have access to various common areas that foster connection and coexistence. Set in an isolated environment, the masia provides a unique opportunity to disconnect, as there are no shops or services nearby, allowing for full immersion in nature.
